

Flexible Couplings From Mission Rubber (UK) Ltd

George Lines has been established over 50 years and is an independent builder's merchant specialising in the supply of civil engineering ground work products.

We are active members of the H&B buying group, whose collective purchasing power is in excess of £100m per annum.

Back in 2007 Mission Rubber were awarded the solus supply agreement of flexible couplings to the H&B group and we moved away from the current market leader to Mission almost overnight and have never looked back.

Right from day one we were impressed by Mission's can do attitude together with their excellent levels of product quality and customer service. They are a pleasant and very competent supplier to do business with.

Nearly 2 years on and we have seen our coupling business grow considerably. When Mission bring new products to market there is always professional support on hand to help us sell the product on to our customers.

Mission have demonstrated to us their drive, enthusiasm and determination to become the major player in the UK couplings market. They have an attitude towards customer service that mirrors our own.....that is why, for us, they are the coupling manufacturer of choice.

Derek Chesson

Sales Manager

George Lines (Merchants) Ltd